Hub's election views split down to the wire

Boston Mayor Marty Walsh, left, casts his ballot the Cristo Rey Boston High School in Dorchester on Tuesday morning. Emotions were positive at both camps Tuesday night, even though the governor's race was still too close to call at midnight. Charlie Baker was ahead by roughly 6,500 votes with 90 percent of precincts reporting. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI AND DEREK KOUYOUMJIAN, METRO

Boston. Much like the returns as of press time, the polls were hard to call on Tuesday.

While the gubernatorial election was still too close to call at midnight, Bostonians had no shortage of opinions regarding the race's two main contenders: Republican Charlie Baker, who was ahead by just 6,500 votes with 90 percent of precincts reporting, and Democrat Martha Coakley.

Randy Dinsmore, a 34-year-old mover from Boston, said he typically votes based on the candidate, not the party.

"I feel politics is so beyond us regular people that I end up voting for the person that I don't like the least," he said. "I liked Baker better than Coakley. He seemed like he was more in touch, I guess. At least with me."

He added, "When it comes to politicians, it all seems so crooked. Our best guy just died [Mayor Tom Menino], you know what I mean?"

Sasha Kaufmann, a 31-year-old social worker from Boston, meanwhile, voted for Coakley.

Voter turnout

Fewer Hub voters at the polls

There are more than 380,000 registered voters in Boston, but by 6 p.m., 131,622 people, or 34 percent of the eligible voters in Boston, had made it to the polls.

In comparison, during the 2010 gubernatorial race, 164,312 registered Boston voters cast their ballots.

Boston has a total of 255 precincts at over 150 polling locations and of the more than 1,700 election officers working the polls, more than 400 are fluent in second languages.

Visit Metro.us for final results and more coverage from Tuesday's election.

"I identify as a gay person and she's been very strong for the LGBT community as well as her work for equal pay. I also heard a lot about Charlie Baker was trying to restrict the welfare system and I didn't like that, particularly considering how our economy is today."

Sophia Foutsitzis, a 19-year-old student at Boston University, said "the Democratic ticket resonates with me both as a woman and a young person."

"I feel like a lot of things went down these past two years with regards to birth control and women's rights. That and environmental policies brought me out," she said.

Foutsitzis said she favored expanding the bottle deposit in the state and keeping the gas tax as it is, two issues that were featured as ballot questions.

"I did get a little confused regarding the ballot questions, though," she said. "I'm concerned I didn't vote for the right thing."

Democrat Beverley Coniglio, a jeweler who lives near Fenway, said she hoped to keep Republicans out of state office. That, and instituting mandatory sick leave for the majority of businesses in the state drew her to the polls.

"I voted 'yes' because I've been in that position where

Ballot questions

Bay State voters spoke loud and clear when it came to the four ballot initiatives, all which have some-what of a financial impact. Here are the results as of press time:

- Voters appeared poised to pass Question 1 to repeal the law that ties the gas tax to the consumer price index 52 percent to 48 percent.
- Voters overwhelmingly defeated Question 2 to expand the bottle bill to include a 5-cent deposit on water, juices and sports drinks by 73 percent to 27 percent.

- Voters rejected Question 3 to repeal the state's casino gambling law, 60 percent to 40 percent.
- Voters approved Question 4, requiring businesses to offer employees paid sick time 60 percent to 40 percent.

you want the sick time," she said. "I cocktailed for a while, where you're making $2.50 an hour. ... It's crazy. It's not fair."

Husband and wife Jonathan Danforth, 58, and Cynthia Danforth, 55, said they liked Baker's private sector experience.

"We need to shake it up," he said, adding that he did not like Coakley's campaign fixating on the truthfulness of the fisherman story that brought Baker to tears in the last debate.

"Going after the fish thing, that totally turned me off," he said. "That was a low blow. I thought, 'Who cares?'"

Both Danforths, who run a technology business, were also against opening casinos, and supported the repeal in Question 3.

"We have so many great things going for us, do we really need this?" asked Cynthia.

Christine Yorty, a 53-year-old artist, said she didn't like Coakley or Baker.

"I don't know if it's true but that stuff about him outsourcing jobs? That makes me crazy," she said. "And she's no Deval Patrick."

She said the state needs to maintain its current gas tax.

"Our economy has never tanked as badly as other places in part because we've had public money. We need to keep doing that," she said. METRO

Investigation

Body pulled from Muddy River

Investigators said a man whose body was pulled from the Muddy River Tuesday was reported missing to Boston Police last month.

A preliminary examination of the man's remains does not suggest foul play, according to the Suffolk County District Attorney's office. An employee from the state Department of Recreation found the body near the Bowker Overpass around 10 a.m.

The Office of the Chief Medical Examiner will make a final ruling on cause and manner of death. METRO

Southie. Tsarnaev sister admits lying to police

Sister of Boston Marathon bombing suspect Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, Ailina Tsarnaeva, makes her way to South Boston Municipal Court Tuesday morning. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

The 24-year-old sister of accused Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev pleaded guilty in South Boston Municipal Court on Tuesday to misleading a Boston Police detective as he investigated the passing of a counterfeit bill at a local Applebee's restaurant.

Ailina Tsarnaeva will serve no jail time if she stays out of trouble in the next 30 days, according to the Suffolk County District Attorney office.

However she faces up to two-and-a-half-years in prison if she reoffends before then.

Prosecutors say Tsarnaeva was uncooperative with the 2010 investigation after she picked up someone who passed a counterfeit bill at the restaurant and "lied about certain salient facts during the investigation."

Tsarnaeva has also faced previous charges in New York for allegedly threatening a woman with a bomb.

Her brother, 21, is awaiting trial on the April 2013 terror attack that killed three people and injured 264.

City's 'Mo Bros' take on Movember

Activism in The Hub.

The mustache growing season is in full, furry effect.

Movember's manly men and the women who love them are five days and a few prickly millimeters into the month-long mustache-growing holiday that raises funds and awareness for prostate and testicular cancers, as well as men's mental health issues.

Two-time testicular cancer survivor Eric Stout, 33, is a member and organizer of the local "BellissiMo" team, which is comprised of 146 members from the Harvard Hospitals Network.

Team BellissiMo is ranked as the seventh Movember team in the nation and has a fundraising goal of $150,000. The "mo bros," as they're called, have managed to rake in $25,000 in donations since Movember kicked off Saturday.

Stout, an East Boston resident, was first diagnosed with testicular cancer in May 2010, at age 28, and suffered a recurrence in December 2010. Stout is thrilled to now be cancer-free, but says if he could turn back time, he would have gotten checked out sooner.

own health," said Stout, a three-year mo bro. "So one of the major reasons why I've stayed as involved as I am is because I want to encourage young guys to advocate for their own health at a really young age."

One in seven men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer in his lifetime, according to medical experts. Testicular cancer is the most common cancer in young men between 15 and 35 years old, and in regard to mental illness, 79 percent of all suicides in the U.S. are men.

Republicans roll up early wins in elections

Obama. The White House played down the prospect of sharp changes in strategy after the election.

Republicans struck powerful first blows in U.S. congressional elections on Tuesday in their drive to control the U.S. Senate and dramatically tip the balance of power away from President Barack Obama and his Democrats.

Obama's low job approval rating, partisan gridlock in Washington and a U.S. economy that is not growing broadly enough to help many in the middle class were major issues confronting voters in elections for 36 senators, 36 state governors and all 435 members of the House of Representatives.

In the Senate races, Republican challenger Tom Cotton defeated Democratic incumbent Mark Pryor in Arkansas, despite frantic get-out-the-vote efforts by former President Bill Clinton, who hails from Arkansas.

Cotton's win, along with a victory by Republican Shelley Moore Capito in West Virginia, gave Republicans two of the six seats they need to gain control of the Senate. Capito easily defeated Natalie Tennant to win a seat left open by retiring Democratic Senator Jay Rockefeller.

In another boost for Republicans, Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky won his re-election battle, fending off Democrat Alison Lundergan Grimes in a race that had been close for months until McConnell pulled away in the polls in recent days. REUTERS

Rihanna goes for shock value with shockingly brief answers for Elle Rihanna graces the cover of Elle magazine for the fourth time for its December issue. She sat down with the magazine for a Q-and-A session full of evidence that Rihanna truly is the Ernest Hemingway of pop stars, using two words where someone like Miley Cyrus would probably use 12. But even with such brevity, her answers are illuminating — terrified of childbirth, loves Michael Bolton's "Greatest Hits." Here are some of her more memorable sound bites.

The answer we don't really believe:
Elle: What do people misunderstand about you?

Rihanna: I'm shy.

The answer that's not such a huge surprise:
Elle: What's your mantra?
Rihanna: "F— bitches, get money!"

The answer that solidifies her geek cred:
Elle: The last time you were starstruck?
Rihanna: When I met Aaron Paul at the Spike awards.

PAOLA KUDACKI FOR ELLE

Most unintentionally cringe-inducing answer:
Elle: If you were a piece of jewelry, what would it be?
Rihanna: I'd be a choker!

see it on film instead of digital — so in honor of "Interstellar," check out "Inception Retold by Mom," from YouTube user pixelspersecond and, naturally, his mom. We'll just let her explain it. But just know that Matt Damon was really good in it.

There's a new 'Hot Mug Shot Guy' in town

SCPD / SPLASH NEWS

There's a new "Hot Mug Shot Guy" sweeping the Internet. Sean Kory was arrested at a Halloween parade in Santa Cruz, California, for assaulting a man dressed up as a Fox News reporter. Kory reportedly yelled, "I hate Fox News," grabbed the man's prop mic and rubbed it in his crotch then began pummeling the victim with a tennis racket, though police reports indicate the man was not injured. Even though we're featuring this item in the paper, don't confuse this as your calling to dethrone Kory.

Between the Beyonce album info leaks, Angelina Jolie considering political office and the Katy Perry-Taylor Swift feud, maybe we forgot to keep an eye on Miley Cyrus. Hey, it happens. So what's she been doing while attentions have been elsewhere? Snagging herself a Schwarzenegger. Cyrus is reportedly dating Patrick Schwarzenegger, son of the Governor and Maria Shriver, according to E! News. The new couple was seen together on a recent night out — as well as the next morning at Schwarzenegger's apartment. Ooooh! Apparently Schwarzenegger likes to play the long game, though. In a 2011 Details magazine profile, he said of his dating life, "My eye, though, is on Miley." This is either adorable or creepy. Or adorably creepy.

Sometimes a fan loves Ariana Grande so much that she has to call the cops on him. At least that was what happened when Tim Normandin, a 29-year-old man from Lowell, didn't heed her record company's request that he stop sending Grande outlandish gifts, according to TMZ. Among the tokens of his affection? Eight Yankee Candle Company candles, calendars featuring puppies and kittens, a three-piece mirror set from Kmart, a $200 anklet from Kay Jewelers, a rock he picked up in New Hampshire's White Mountains and, best of all, a

'Interstellar' needs to be seen on film

Out today. You really have to view this space-aged movie the old-fashioned way.

Wednesday marks a milestone: A film is being released on actual film. "Interstellar" hits theaters today — just not even close to all of them. That may seem odd, given that it's one of the most highly anticipated movies of the year: the latest from brainy blockbuster-maker Christopher Nolan, with Oscar winners Matthew McConaughey and Anne Hathaway in space.

Yet the only theaters getting it are the ones that never threw out their film projectors, which are fewer than 300.

This bold move is a strong push-back against the digital wave that has almost consumed modern cinema. In 2010, most theaters switched — at great cost — to DCP (Digital Cinema Package), a purely computerized system. Instead of bulky, expensive-to-ship film reels, movies were mere files with a password to unlock. Unlike film, they would never scratch, rot or burn up. All a projectionist had to do was hit a button.

But the files are vulnerable to corruption and deletion. And while it's nice to have sparkling-clean images, they can be too bright. As Quentin Tarantino — like Nolan, another celluloid zealot — once put it, digital projection is like "watching television in public."

"Interstellar" looks great on

"Interstellar" opens on film today before being released on digital Friday. Go to www.metro.us to read our review and see where the film is playing today. / MELINDA SUE GORDON, PARAMOUNT, WARNER BROTHERS

Directors who ditch digital

Nolan isn't the only prestigious member of the film club

Christopher Nolan isn't the only one still holding the torch for celluloid. Quentin Tarantino will be releasing 70mm prints of his next film, "The Hateful Eight." Two years ago Paul Thomas Anderson's "The Master" was shipped out in 70mm prints, and his new "Inherent Vice" played the New York Film Festival on 35mm.

Others include Wes Anderson, Rian Johnson ("Looper") and Alex Ross Perry ("Listen Up Philip").

70mm. The film is about McConaughey and Hathaway searching through the cosmos for a planet to replace dying Earth, and its early scenes on Earth are sometimes impossibly dark. But once it gets to space, you can not only see the majesty, but feel it. None of it looks digital, not even the planets our heroes visit.

Nolan shot one of them in Iceland, and it resembles an alien land. Beyond that, it looks real. It looks like film.

MOLLY CONGDON

Turn off your autopilot

Are you guilty of not making your bed? If running out of the house with pillows and sheets scattered is something you've become accustomed to, it's time to make a conscious change. "People don't realize this, but 80 percent of our daily thoughts and actions are done out of habit," O'Leary says. "Being aware of this is key. In order to see some changes in your home, you have to discard your bad tendencies and replace them with beneficial ones, which will inspire better living."

Clear clutter

When you walk through the door after a long day, do you feel relief or do you feel stressed because you have yet to go through the magazines that are scattered across the floor? "The first thing to do within your home is to take care of the clutter, because it weighs on our unconscious mind," says O'Leary. "Go through those cluttered spaces and start there. You want your home to nurture you, not drain your energy."

Shop wisely

"All of the products you bring into your home have a direct impact on the function of your body and your vitality and vibrancy," says O'Leary. "Even the cleaning products you're using have a direct impact on your health." Because of this, she suggests going for organic and natural cleaners.

PLUS

Tip

Who knew our wall color could have such an impact on our actions? "Red actually increases aggression and our energy level, and physiologically it increases your heart rate and makes you hungry," O'Leary explains. "So if you are trying to lose weight, red would be the worst color to paint your kitchen." O'Leary's home is full of "grounding colors," such as beiges and grays. "You have to figure out what will support you," she says.

Fall trends. Low prices, but also low inventory for fall home buyers

Cooler weather in September not only brought a swift end to summer, but according to some reports, the unseasonal cold snap cooled the home sales market, too. Did the chilly air kill the Greater Boston market?

"Well, yes and no," says realtor Susan Piracini of RE/MAX Leading Edge of Back Bay. "There was a cooling in the market and we did have a slow September, and some of that was weather related. But, overall, it was more a reaction to the red-hot crazy spring and summer market."

Piracini says this year's frenzied bidding wars, which pushed home sales over asking price, scared a lot of buyers off.

"It got to the point where there was buyer resistance to the higher prices. Sellers got cocky and pushed prices up and up. After seeing ten homes and getting outbid on each, buyers give up and go and rent."

Fall is a good time for buying. Many home owners whose houses haven't sold are more willing to negotiate, as most people want to move before the holidays kick in.

"This is usually a great time of year for buyers. But much of the inventory did get snapped up, so they might have to settle for something that isn't their ideal home. But they can get a good deal," Piracini says.

While it might not be as hot as 2014, the next year is still likely to be a hot one.

"There's a natural leveling off. It's no giant correction, nothing like what we saw in 2008." LINDA CLARKE

Get smart with the iPad stand

The Williams-Sonoma Smart Tools for iPad Set is the cuisine-keen technophile's winning trifecta: It serves as a nifty stand for reading recipes on your iPad, cranks out tunes via its Bluetooth speaker and keeps your tablet spill-free with a removable screen shield. Why not video chat with your friends while cooking a big meal in the kitchen? Wireless technology and a line-in port for connecting gadgets provides a clear picture and sound, and the portable gadget stand can be placed in four different positions while you prepare your meals. $199.95

Apps and gadgets for the kitchen

The 0452 digital scale perfects portions

If you reckon you're a little pedantic when it comes to knowing what's on your plate, then this gadget is for you. The Perfect Portions 0452's intelligent food scale displays the nutritional facts of the food on your plate. The gadget also shows the daily totals you need for calories, carbs, sugars and fats, letting you customize the scale by entering 99 of your own foods.

Designed in an easy-to-clean format, the scale has a glass-top surface and touchpad keys to make for easier use. $39.99

Ugh, cooking — the bane of busy millennials everywhere. Between pinging away on a smartphone or social media and working long hours for peanuts in a post-recession economy, young urbanites have little time or patience to whip up an elaborate meal. Fret not, help is at hand with these nifty apps and gadgets that are perfect for the tech-obsessed young professional who can't boil an egg. WANISE MARTINEZ, MWN

Cooking time is made 'Real Simple'

Most nights, the last thing on your mind is cooking dinner after a long day at work. But with the Real Simple app, you'll have access to plenty of quick meals that take 40 minutes or fewer to prepare. New recipes are fed into the app every month. The app has a kitchen timer to help you stay on track additional tips and nutritional info, as well as an upgraded version (99 cents per month) that offers more than 900 recipes. Available for iOS and Android.

What an intelligent pot

The Crock-Pot Slow Cooker works with smart cook technology to solve all your problems with the oven. Just put all the necessary ingredients in, select your "Ready At" time and your protein type, and it starts doing your job for you. The temperature of the crock-pot can be changed, so recipes that normally take a long time can be ready earlier and vice-versa. After the food is done, the machine will switch to a keep-warm mode. More good news: The removable stoneware means you won't need another set of serving dishes, which means fewer things to clean up. The pots come in different models to suit your needs. $59.99

Feel 'appy' with Green Kitchen

For those interested in organic and vegetarian meals that are also easy to prepare, the Green Kitchen app is a must. It instructs you how to whip up 102 creative, meatless recipes using whole grains and seeds, healthy fats and unrefined sugars. Each recipe includes estimated cooking times and lots of photos of the dishes. Available for iOS.

LASIK & Beyond

Taking Your Vision To The Next Level

At New England Eye Center, we truly are taking sight to the next level. Thanks to recent advances in laser and lens implant technology, our highly-trained specialists are helping patients of all ages enjoy the type of clearer, more natural vision they desire. Vision for the way we live here in New England!

Think You're Too Young For Cataracts?

Cataracts can affect your vision as early as age 50.

Find out now about Laser Cataract Surgery & Advanced Lens Implants

Changes in your vision such as difficulty in driving, halos around lights or even the need for reading glasses could mean your vision is being affected by cataracts. It's important to know you have options. At New England Eye Center, we now offer the option of laser cataract surgery with the Catalys® Precision Laser System. The powerful combination of our advanced lens implant options and laser cataract surgery means we can provide near, intermediate and distance vision, and treat your astigmatism at the same time.

Call us today to schedule your personal cataract evaluation.

From our all-laser, bladeless LASIK procedure – to exciting developments like our Visian Implantable lens – our commitment to leading edge technology is surpassed only by our dedication to personalized patient care. Patients of New England Eye Center find confidence in knowing we offer experience you can trust and technology you can rely on.

NASA-Approved LASIK - Our all-laser, bladeless LASIK at New England Eye Center has greatly improved results and helped take the fear out of having LASIK. The vast majority of our LASIK and PRK patients now achieve 20/20 vision at distance without glasses or contact lenses. Our method of LASIK is the same type approved for NASA astronauts and military pilots.

Implantable Contact Lens - New England Eye Center is among a select group of practices in the country offering patients the benefits of the Visian Implantable Collamer Lens (ICL). Unlike LASIK, the Visian corrects vision by inserting a delicate intraocular lens-like device atop the eye's natural lens, which is why the Visian is also referred to as the 'Implantable Contact Lens.' All of the refractive surgeons at New England Eye Center are qualified and experienced in performing this brief outpatient procedure to insert the Visian ICL. Because no corneal or other tissue is removed in the Visian ICL procedure, visual recovery is extremely rapid and the ICL can potentially be replaced if the eye's focus changes over time.

Refractive Lens Exchange - If you're frustrated with reading glasses and bifocals, our refractive specialists perform a procedure known as Refractive Lens Exchange. By replacing your eye's aging natural lens with a Intraocular Lens Implant customized specifically for your visual needs – and your lifestyle – allowing you to see better, look younger and never have to worry about developing cataracts!

Laser Cataract Surgery - For seniors experiencing changes in their vision – or who have been diagnosed with a cataract – New England Eye Center is turning the dream of Laser Cataract Surgery into reality. We are currently among only the top 3% of practices in the country to offer patients the added precision and accuracy of Laser Cataract Surgery using OptiMedica® Catalys™ Precision Laser System.

This year, take your vision to the NEXT LEVEL by giving yourself or a loved one the Gift of Sight. Now that's a Gift that keeps on Giving. A blessed New Year from the surgeons and staff of New England Eye Center.

Pedestrians aggravated by cyclists

Re: 'Oppression against cyclists is great travesty of our age' (Metro, Nov. 4) In response to letter writer Jack Dickenson, the WHY is this: Lawless cyclists should be targeted by police over pedestrians because bicycles are vehicles that regularly travel over the speed limit set by the city. "Lawless" pedestrians don't do the same. Jaywalking pedestrians are not going to crush another human being the way lawless cyclists so often do.

AMY BALDWIN, VIA EMAIL

It's bad enough that I have to get cut off almost daily by cyclists (while in a crosswalk no less), but now I have to read about their "oppression" in Metro. Get a grip, Jack — cyclists are going 10 to 15 miles an hour, while pedestrians are going about 2 to 3 mph. We're just trying to get to work without getting hit by a car or bike — pedestrians and vehicles stop at lights and follow the rules of the road — most cyclists do neither. I don't have an issue outside of the city, but while trying to commute, cyclists are just a nuisance!

M. DISCOLO, VIA EMAIL

Pedestrians need to look where they're going

Pedestrians are usually not bad or lawless, but are too often distracted by electronic devices. If someone is walking and talking using an earphone while eating something and slurping a beverage, how can they be expected to pay attention to traffic? I have never seen police treat cyclists unfairly, so nothing is proved about cops targeting cyclists as opposed to pedestrians unless evidence is provided.

NFL power rankings | by Matt Burke

No. 1

Patriots (7-2)

No team in the NFL was or is beating that Pats team that played late Sunday afternoon. Darrelle Revis and Brandon Browner give the Pats, arguably, the best pass defense in the pass-happy NFL and Tom Brady and Rob Gronkowski are the most dangerous QB-TE combo in the league since 2011's Tom Brady and Rob Gronkowski.

No. 2

Cardinals (7-1)

Reason No. 1 why the Cards are No. 2: Their lone loss this season came to the Broncos, the team the Pats blew out on Sunday.

No. 3

Broncos (6-2)

The best part of every regular season for Peyton Manning is always the game after he had to deal with a Bill Belichick defense.

No. 4

Eagles (6-2)

Losing your starting quarterback in the first quarter and winning a road game falls into the category of "dealing well with adversity."

No. 5

Lions (6-2)

In no way does this feel like the fifth-best team in football, but the fact is they've played just one absolute stinker this season (a 27-7 loss in Carolina).

No. 6

Seahawks (5-3)

The Seahawks were on the verge of blowing out the winless Raiders, leading 24-3 at the half. They wound up winning by just six points.

No. 7

Colts (6-3)

We now know that the Steelers are at least a solid football team, so the Colts' blowout loss to them in Week 8 wasn't as bad as it seemed.

No. 8

Steelers (6-3)

Before we go nuts with the Steelers love, let's remember that their three-game win streak is due partly to them being home the whole time.

No. 9

Packers (5-3)

So far in 2014, Packers running back Eddie Lacy has just one 100-plus yard rushing day — or seven fewer than DeMarco Murray.

No. 10

Cowboys (6-3)

Jerry Jones wants Tony Romo to play in London so badly that he "jokingly" offered up his wife's first-class seat on the team plane to the quarterback.

No. 11

Chiefs (5-3)

Alex Smith's line in the Chiefs' 24-10 win over the Jets was perfectly Alex Smith. He connected on 21-of-31 passes for 199 yards.

No. 12

Dolphins (5-3)

Miami scored 27 points in three straight games before breaking the trend this past Sunday by putting 37 on the board against San Diego.

No. 13

Bills (5-3)

Only the Patriots have scored over 23 points against the Bills. Buffalo can get an early lead in the wild card race as it has the Chiefs and Miami coming up.

No. 14

Chargers (5-4)

Wow, was that Miami game alarming. San Diego is doing the opposite of what was once its hallmark. This year, the Chargers may have peaked early.

No. 15

Bengals (5-2-1)

They're slowing rebuilding their reputation after a blow-out loss to the Pats, a tie versus the Panthers and a shutout loss to the Colts.

No. 16

Browns (5-3)

The Browns went 2-1 against the Jags, Raiders and Bucs but only averaged 17 points. They'll have to step up their game against Cincy on Thursday.

No. 17

Ravens (5-4)

Seriously, is there any difference between the Ravens, Bengals, Steelers, Chiefs, Browns, Bills, Dolphins, Chargers and Texans?

No. 18

Saints (4-4)

The Saints have three straight games in the, as Hulk Hogan would say, the "New Orleans SilverDome." They could be 7-4 by Thanksgiving.

NHL

Chara mum on time of return

Zdeno Chara on Tuesday declined to say whether or not he was progressing well after tearing the PCL in his left knee. "There's not a timetable right now," Chara said. "I wish I could tell you guys exactly when I'm going to return, but at this point it's just really a slow process, so who knows then the [return] day is."

Celtics aren't shy about shooting 3's despite struggles

A main beef with the Celtics (1-2) heading into the 2014-15 season was that they didn't have enough players who could shoot the ball well from the outside.

Through three games, that prediction seems to have been spot on. While the C's love to shoot 3's — they've shot 26 per game so far, tied for seventh in the league — they're not exactly good at it. Their percentage from beyond the deep stripe is a paltry .256, the 25th worst mark in the NBA. That is mostly due to the C's horrific shooting night in Houston last Saturday night, when they went 1-for-25 from 3-point range. Things went a bit better two nights later against the Mavs as the green hit 11-of-31 from deep.

Jeff Green leads the Celtics in scoring so far this season. GETTY IMAGES

This is not to say that Boston can't score. The C's are averaging 108 points per game so far this season, the third-best mark in the league. Jeff Green is leading the way, scoring-wise, pumping in 23 points per game with Avery Bradley (17.7 ppg) and Jared Sullinger (13.7 ppg) also getting the job done offensively.

The Celtics get back to work Wednesday at TD Garden when they'll host the Raptors (7:30 p.m., CSNNE). Toronto won its first two games of the season, beating Atlanta and Orlando, before falling to Miami on Sunday. MATT BURKE
